RUNAWAY HORSE'S CAPER

Attached to Grocery Wagon It Causes Quite a Flurry on Main Street. Wagon Fit for Repair Shop.

A runaway horse, owned by Merchant P. F. McDonough, of Pike street, and attached to one of his grocery wagons, disturbed the quiet of Main street yesterday afternoon, and caused quite a commotion while the exciting incident lasted.

The horse took flight on upper Main street, and tore down the avenue at a wild pace, dragging the wagon from one side of the street to the other, chasing to retreats of safety pedestrians who feared that the animal in his wild flight might turn on the sidewalk and run them down.

Midway in the block between Sixth and Seventh avenues, the light wagon that was being carried along like a toy express cart, bumped up against a coal wagon with a bump that shook every fastening in its light framework.

The stout coal wagon sent its weaker brother in the air, but it came down squarely, only to get a second bump an instant later against a telegraph pole in front of Messer's saloon.

The force of this collision overturned the wagon and somewhat checked the speed of the sorry runaway, which continued, however, with the box of the wagon sliding along the pavement, the wheels in the air.

At Seventh avenue, two men, Patrick Flannery and John Wilson, ventured close to the straggling horse, which was in a fearful mix-up in the loosening harness. They succeeded in stopping the runaway, but it was a greater task to free the kicking colt from the harness, which was tangled about the hind legs in every conceivable twist.

After a heap of pulling and tugging and excited orders and counter-orders from the heroes of the happening, the painting horse was freed. Then it was that the real hero of the occasion, Frank McDonough, was given a chance to win the plaudits of the interested onlookers. The colt was in the humor of giving another wild exhibition and started to make matters lively in its attempt to make for the Pike, where it gets its daily meals and hay.

McDonough stuck like sticky fly-paper, until you could hear the spectators yell, "That's grit for you," and Mr. Colt gave up the struggle and put off his supper hour for another while.

The wagon seat was broken and scattered about the roadway, and there are parts that will need the wagon repairer's attention.

The horse took flight by being struck with a board that fell from the wagon while it was being unloaded.

FOOT BALL AT ALUMNI PARK. Season to Open Today When Indians Meet Scranton Kickers.

This afternoon will be a lively day at Alumni park. It will be an afternoon of kicking, for it will be the opening of the foot ball season in Carbondale and all the pig-skin followers are expected to be out in force.

The game will be contested by the Indians, the notorious foot ball scapions from this city, and an eleven from Scranton, which the Carbondale rushers and kickers declare will bring a lot of small change—say thirty cents in pennies—after the kicking and rushing is out of it.

Two halves will be played, one of twenty-five, the other of twenty minutes' duration. The kick-off will take place at 3:35 promptly.

In the Aldermen's Courts. Joe Tessa, the pioneer bootblack, the Italian umbrella mender and the vendor of toy balloons at Lake Lodge during the excursion season, is in a heap of trouble over differences between himself and his wife, the major blame for which he lays on a woman named Lizzie Perina. The Perina woman, Joe says, is too talkative about other people's affairs, and he claims she is nothing better than a busy-body, exerting more influence over his wife than he seems to be able to wield. Accordingly he had her arrested on the charge of being a common scold and making threats. Alderman Atkinson held her in $200 bail.

Mrs. Mary Egelski, of Simpson, was held in $200 bail by the same magistrate on the charge of threatening Mrs. Mary Nolan, her neighbor.

THE POOR BOARD'S QUIET SESSION. There Was Little of Interest Transacted at Last Night's Meeting.

The poor board held its regular semi-monthly meeting last night, with all of the directors present. Mr. McCabe, of the farm committee, reported that there is a leak in the new dam at the farm.

MEN BEFORE THE PUBLIC EYE

One of Carbondale's citizens, whose duties keep him constantly before the public eye, is John Killen, foreman of the street cleaning brigade, or what is popularly known as street commissioner, though this title is actually vested in the city engineer.

Street Commissioner Killen is a splendid type of the sturdy men who settled in Carbondale and made it the home of sons of whom the city is proud. He is a descendant of the early settlers, in fact, he came here when Carbondale was no more than what its name typifies. He has the same rare characteristics of the pioneer, "the bold peasantry," who certainly ranked as their country's pride.

Mr. Killen's career has been most honorable and noteworthy. From early manhood, he has been identified with the city's growth, its political life and all that had to do with its advancement. In the early days, he was a noted campaigner, and there were many political battles in which his influence and activity were not an important factor. And he was not unwarmed for his labors, for he can point to a line of offices to which he was elected by the choice of his party. Among these was a several years' term as constable, a humble beginning, several terms in council, city marshal for five years and his present office, which he has filled with utmost satisfaction for over a decade of years.

For this office of street commissioner, Mr. Killen has been chosen for several terms, no reason other than his fitness for the position. He is one of the men who does not regard such a position as a sinecure, for he is not afraid to work himself to the bone, and he is not afraid to wield a broom or handle a shovel, when he believes that putting his shoulder to the wheel will make things move along more smoothly and rapidly.

Mr. Killen is decidedly frank and to the point, on every occasion when he believes he is in the right, and he will "show to the line" and let the chips fall where they may, when he makes up his mind that his course is the right one. This frankness and firmness and honesty of purpose are among the qualities that are most admired in Mr. Killen by the hosts of friends in this city and valley.

Cardinal Martinelli's Visit. Will Be Here for Dedication of New Italian Church if Not Recalled to Rome, Meantime.

Cardinal Martinelli will be the guest of the Catholic Italians of Carbondale, Oct. 27, provided he is not recalled to Rome before that time.

The occasion of the first visit to Carbondale of such a dignitary of the Catholic church is the dedication of the church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel on that date.

The members of the church are proudly anticipating the coming of Cardinal Martinelli and are praying that the summons from Rome will be delayed until after the date set for the dedication.

AMUSEMENTS. "The Pride of Jennico," Tonight.

"The Pride of Jennico" will be presented here tonight at the Grand Opera house by a fully capable company. The play is a romantic drama, which has made a great success during the past two seasons. The novel of the same name is by Egerton Castle, and it is the chief incident of the book which forms the foundation of the play, which is by Abby Sage Richards and Grace L. Furness.

A fine scenic outfit is carried by the company, which is first class, and includes Wallace Worsey, William J. Romaine, Theodore Kohrward, C. W. Vance, Katherine Eric, Frances Nelson, Suzanne Halpern, Aileen May and others.

"On the Wabash," Monday Evening.

"The Boston Herald" describes "On the Wabash," the opening bill of the King Dramatic company, Monday evening, by the following well-chosen words: "It is a play that holds the audience alternately between tears and laughter, with its intense heart story, thrilling incidents, and bright comedy scenes, that run through like a streak of sunshine."

"On the Wabash" will be found one of the many strong bills which will be presented at the Grand opera house next week, at popular prices. It is generally considered one of the best constructed plays of its kind, and the story is located in the interior of Indiana, which makes it all the more interesting. This gives both the artist and the author every opportunity to gain effect and construct a picturesque and telling drama. Every detail has been taken advantage of, and it is the claim of the King Dramatic company that their presentation is equal in every way to the original production. The drama calls for nine different stage settings, each of which are shown complete.

Kind Words for Rev. Dr. Whalen.

The following references complimentary to Rev. Dr. J. J. Whalen of this city, is taken from the Hartford correspondence: "Rev. J. J. Whalen exchanged with Rev. J. P. Maxwell last Sunday and preached an excellent sermon in the Congregational church. His lecture on 'The Life of Christ' Sunday lecture on 'The Life of Christ' Sunday evening was greatly appreciated. On Monday night he lectured on 'The Bright and Dark Side of New York City.' Dr. Whalen is a very entertaining and helpful lecturer. Such lectures will do much to elevate a community, because there is something in them and emphatically Christian. People who miss them, lose the privilege of knowing more than they do at present, as well as being helped to better manhood and womanhood."

There will be a splendid spread and at its conclusion there will be an informal social time and a short entertainment.

During the evening the fancy quilt, for which tickets are being sold, will be disposed of by chance.

JERMYN AND MAYFIELD.

James P. Sampson, whose serious illness has from time to time been noted in The Tribune, died at his home on Second street yesterday afternoon. Deceased was born in Cornwall, England, in 1835, and for the past thirty-three years has been a resident of this borough. He was known in the borough as a man of sterling character and was esteemed by old and young alike. He was a prominent member and class leader of the Methodist Episcopal church and a power in promoting the welfare of both the church and Sunday school. Deceased is survived by his wife, two sons, John J. and Archibald, Samuel, of Cranford, N. J., and a daughter, Catharine, of this borough. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon. Services will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church at 2:30 o'clock and the sermon will be preached by his life long friend, Rev. Francis Gendall, of Peckville. Burial will be in the cemetery at Prospect place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Newberry of South Second street, entertained a large number of friends in their home on Monday afternoon in honor of their daughter, Blanche's fourth birthday. The little Blanche had a highly enjoyable time and were regaled with all sorts of good things by way of refreshments.

Rev. H. G. Russell, of Hudson, will officiate at the morning service tomorrow in the Primitive Methodist church.

Mr. Manto Jacobs, a converted Jew, will speak in the Baptist church tomorrow evening and will give an account of his conversion and his struggle for the blessed Christian faith. All are most cordially invited to hear. An offering will be received for Mr. Jacobs' expenses. The pastor's morning subject will be "Doing What Christ Said."

Miss Margie McChone, who has been spending the summer here at her home will return today to New York city. Rural Delivery Inspector Dolan, of the postoffice service, was here yesterday and in company with Postmaster Griffith made a trip over the rural route.

Boys, on Thursday evening, walking along the Delaware and Hudson tracks in the vicinity of the Sterrick Creek breaker, just north of the Peckville station, discovered a horse upon the track. The horse was standing and making frantic efforts to free one of its hind feet, which was caught in a switch. The animal at last jumped, and in doing so the hoof was torn off. The horse then hobbled along up the track as far as the Mount Jessup Coal company's barn, where company employes took the horse in charge. The animal had nearly bled to death. No one has called to claim the animal. The horse is white in color and small in size. No doubt the animal will have to be shot.

Frank P. Benjamin was given an enjoyable surprise last evening, Mr. Benjamin, for several years, had been in the employ of the Hillside Coal and Iron company as coal inspector. Mr. Benjamin for a long time has been located at the Sterrick Creek colliery, on the East side. The office forces and outside employes, with a large number of friends, gathered at the Hotel Wilson parlors last evening, and Mr. Benjamin was taken there and introduced.

It is needless to say that the evening was a most enjoyable one. Each and every one present vied with one another to make the evening one long to be remembered by Mr. Benjamin, who leaves Monday to begin his studies at the Carlisle School of Law. Mr. Benjamin was presented, as a token of regard, with the latest Webster's unabridged dictionary. At a late hour these present gave Mr. Benjamin their hearty wishes for his new vocation, and journeyed homeward.

MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Use and Recommend Pe-ru-na, the Catarrh Tonic for Exhaustion

MAYOR B. J. IRVIN, of WASHINGTON GA.

Mayor B. J. Irvin, Mayor of Washington, Ga., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., says: "I have frequently used Peruna in my family and have found it an excellent remedy for colds and as a tonic. I often recommend it to my friends."

The politician of all men must needs be in good health and splendid spirits. There is nothing so exhaustive to body and mind as to conduct a political campaign with the spirit and vim, courage and intellect that characterize political campaign in the United States.

Sometimes these campaigns require the speakers and managers to sleep in a different bed every night, eat at different hotels every day, travel by day and speak at night for many months at a time.

No one can endure this strain without a remedy to protect them from the vicissitudes of their case and to insure good digestion and sound sleep, something to give nerve and brain the invigoration necessary to meet such an extraordinary strain.

Peruna is the remedy to meet each one of these conditions. Perhaps it would be going too far to say that it is the only remedy that will do this, but at least it is the best known remedy and the best tried remedy and the remedy recommended by the most people as exactly adapted to the exposure and exhaustion incident to campaign work.

Not only does the politician find it exactly the remedy that suits his needs, but the farmer, the housewife, the clergyman, the clerk, the society woman and the day laborer all alike find Peruna to be not only curative but preventative.

In this climate where everybody is liable to catarrh and everybody has it in some form or other, Peruna has become a fixture and like the telephone and the electric light could hardly be spared from civilization.

Hal P. Denton, Chief National Exposition, Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was completely run down from and peaceful, which was but another of the characteristics of the man. At the church services were conducted by Rev. D. T. Smythe, whose words were not only comforting, but from them could be drawn the many lessons of life. Being a member of the choir, many old associates were present and sang the favorite hymn of their brother member. The floral offerings were very beautiful. They consisted of a pillow inscribed "Father," wreath, Mrs. James Morton, bouquet, Mrs. James Alexander and Miss Belle Morton; red roses, Langellie choir; pink carnations, Mr. and Mrs. James McMath; carnations, Misses Margaret Arkman and Jennie Newlin; yellow roses, John Gordon, Brooklyn; bouquet, Miss Mary Brown; bouquet, Mrs. John Sitterly. The pall-bearers were John Graham, N. E. Hopkins, E. E. Wildrick, John Widdell, George Weber, Alexander Conkey. The floral bearers were: John Jenkins, Joseph Widdell, James Powell, Hugh Conkey, William McIntyre, William McGraw, John Bumgardner. At the grave the choir sang "Christian, Good Night."

J. J. Newton, Fred Green and James Crowe have returned from Allentown fair.

Drs. Berge and Watson performed an operation on the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hines on Wednesday afternoon for the removal of an abscess on the left side.

Mrs. John Newton, formerly of this town, was married on Wednesday evening to Charles Boone of Pittston at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Ridgely of Luzerne borough.

Miss Emma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Deady, of the West Side, and Harry Prange of Pittston, was solemnized at the Primitive Methodist parsonage on Wednesday evening by Rev. James Moore. They will reside in Pittston.

Mrs. John Newton of Carbondale is visiting friends here.

MOSCOW. The Woman's Relief Corps gave a surprise party to one of their members, Mrs. J. H. Hathrill, Wednesday afternoon. Refreshments were served and a delightful afternoon was spent by all. Those present were: Mrs. Hone, Mrs. Edward Van Hout, Mrs. John Clouse, Mrs. Henry Clouse, Mrs. Pelton, Mrs. Hodgson, Mrs. Joseph Stanley, Mrs. Myra DePew, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Michler, Mrs. Hinds and Miss Louis Sayer.

Miss Ruth Gardner is visiting friends in Homedale.

Miss Florence Yeager, formerly of this place, was married to Mr. Gustav R. Roddy, of Scranton, Wednesday morning.
